Seven-Drawer Chest, 2003

Sam Chase received formal training at the North Bennet Street School in Boston, Massachusetts, and worked for Boston area cabinetmakers before opening his own furniture shop in Canterbury, New Hampshire, in 1992.

He concentrates on designs based on pieces built in New England in the late 18th to early 19th centuries. This work includes Shaker-style furniture, as well as more decorative pieces of the Federal period. The combination of function, beauty, joinery, and decorative elements makes building these pieces enjoyable and rewarding.
